military service tribunals were formed following the introduction of conscription in January 1916 to consider applications for exemption from military service swiftly they gained two opposing yet equally unflattering reputations in the eyes of the military they were soft obstructionist old duffers to most of the men who came before them they were the unfeeling civilian arm of a remorseless grinding machine this work utilising a rare surviving set of tribunal records challenges both perspectives wielding unprecedented power yet acutely sensitive to the contradictions inherent in their task the tribunals were obliged often at a conveyor belt's pace to make decisions that often determined the fate of men that some of these decisions were capricious or even wrong is indisputable the sparse historiography of the tribunals has too often focused upon the idiosyncratic example while ignoring the wider impact of imprecise legislation government hand washing and short term military exigencies
